Hello, Bradley – We are conducting a 24-week study of hydrogen sulfide in Crossett, Arkansas. We have 20 monitors in Crossett – 11 of which are on GP property, 3 of which are on the fenceline, and 6 of which are in the community. These are 2-week passive sampling tubes, and we are harvesting the samples every other Friday, sending them to a lab, and then receiving the results in approximately 2 weeks. I'm attaching the Fact Sheet that we handed out to the community members who gave us access to their property for monitors.

Since we're measuring 2-week intervals of hydrogen sulfide, which is much different than the continuous sampling occurring at the community monitor that has been in place since 2015, we are not releasing the information publicly as we receive it, but rather plan to release to the public a summary report at the end of the 24 weeks. The last day of sampling is June 30, 2017, so I would expect the report to be released a month or two after that. – Tressa

Hello Tressa,

I understand from the Crossett community that some air monitors have been set-up by EPA. Can you tell us about the air monitoring program for Crossett? Thank you.

Best,
Bradley

Hello Tressa,

GP Crossett closed the surface water containment pond because they did not need the pond. GP Crossett installed an oil water separator. Stormwater and process wastewater from the chemical plant is sent through the oil water separator before entering the wastewater treatment plant.

Hi, Alisa and Bradley – We received the attached health consultation last week and shared it with Mr. David Bouie of the Crossett Concerned Citizens for Environmental Justice and Ms. Wilma Subra of the Louisiana Environmental Action Network. The Arkansas Department of Health (ADH) points-of-contact that I normally work with for Crossett activities are as follows for your reference. In addition, I think it would be helpful to you to reach out to the Arkansas Department of Environmental Quality (ADEQ) as well. Below also are my ADEQ contacts for Crossett. Best wishes! -- Tressa
